

NINE ARRESTED AS IRISH MOURN FOR O'HIGGINS

Supporters of Eamonn de Valera and of Republican Army Organization Denounce Murder.

VICTIM'S BODY LIES IN STATE

Public Funeral of "Most Hated Man" Is Set for Tomorrow; Thousands View Body.

BY GEORGE MACDONAGH.
Dublin, July 11.—(United News.)—Nine men were arrested tonight on suspicion that they were implicated in the plot to assassinate Vice President Kevin O'Higgins.

It was assumed that they were known to be republicans and were suspected of extreme affiliations. They will be arraigned in police court Tuesday, charged with conspiracy.

Civic guards in the Free State generally, and ordinary police in towns, were concentrated to the exclusion of almost every other activity in seeking clues to the identity of the murderers who riddled with bullets the body of the man whose determination and firmness had brought Ireland through a critical period of her history.

The search centered in the Wicklow mountain district south of Dublin. Many times the mountains have provided shelter for rebels—until a few years ago rebels against British rule. They probably sheltered O'Higgins himself occasionally during the revolution that won Ireland's present constitution.

As the search continued, it was reported that several arrests had been made in other sections in addition to those in Dublin. These, it was taken for granted, were detentions for examination of known republicans whose week-end movements interested police. Both Eamonn de Valera's financial Irish republican army organization have repudiated connection with the assassination. There had been no suspicion that de Valera's party was concerned. Generally the murder is regarded as the work of a small group of extremists—how small nobody knows.

Most Hated Man.
The question remains unsolved, too, whether it was an isolated incident, aimed at probably the most hated man in Ireland, or whether it was the opening act in a new tragedy of civil war. Government and people are hoping that O'Higgins alone was the target. While they are hoping, the government is preparing for any development. Cabinet ministers are being closely guarded by detectives.

As Ireland mourned the death of a respected leader, King George V sent the condolences of Great Britain. "I learned with horror of the death of this tragic figure," said the king. "I am deeply sympathetic of the queen and myself on the cruel loss she and her children have suffered."

Body Lies in State.
President William T. Cosgrave, all members of his cabinet, heads of the army and the civic guards and distinguished citizens of Dublin participated in a procession that escorted the murdered statesman's body to the mansion house Monday.

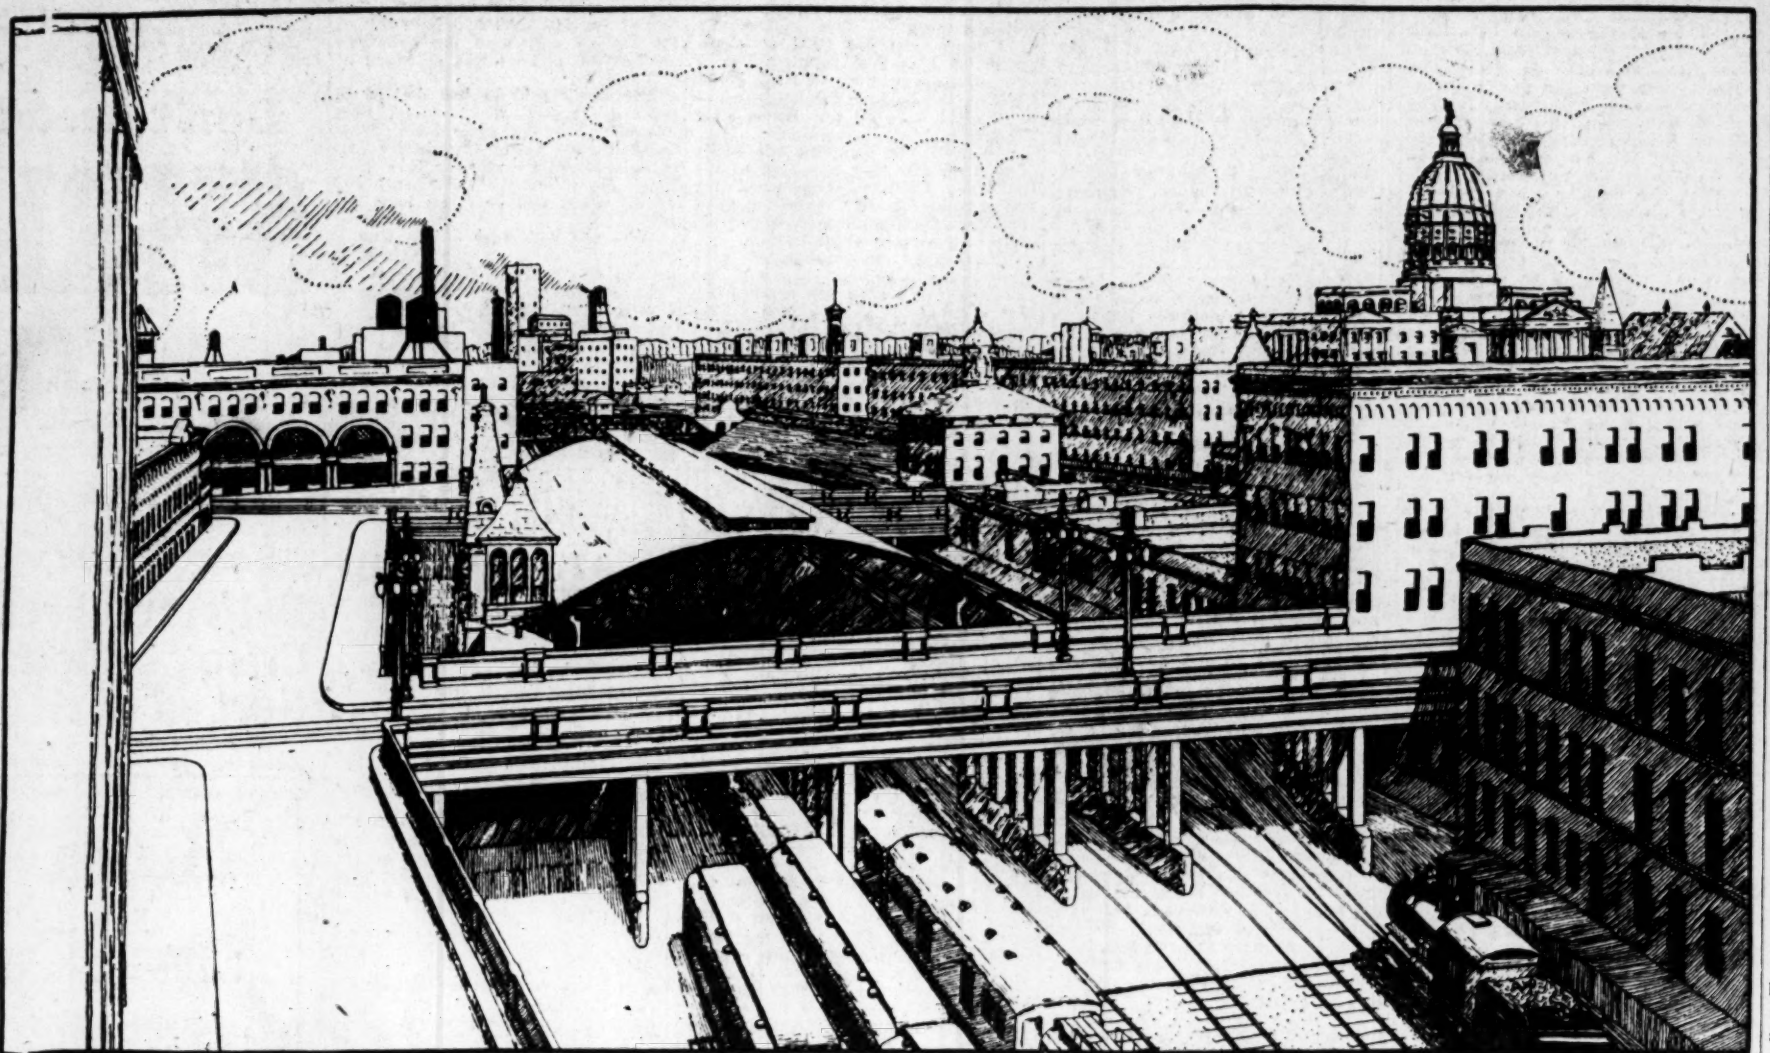

Draped in the republican colors, the body lies in state there, awaiting a public funeral Wednesday. Thousands of people have filed past it. Flags throughout the country are at half-mast. And while the search went on for the assassin Monday, a coroner's jury recorded a verdict of "wilful murder against some person or persons unknown."

"The assassination of Kevin O'Higgins is murder, irreconcilable from any standpoint," said Eamonn de Valera in an interview repudiating republican responsibility.

"I am confident no republican organization is responsible for or concerned in such a crime."

"It is a crime that cuts at the root of all responsible government. No one who realizes what crime means can but deplore and condemn it."

Construction To Begin on Viaducts Within Next Four Months; Drawings Show How New Bridges for Pryor and Central Will Look

Drawing by Walter F. Schulz, of Memphis, consulting engineer.

Erection of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts according to tentatively accepted drawings received in Atlanta Monday morning, shown in the above draft, will form a unified system of bridges in the very heart of Atlanta, relieving traffic congestion and expediting the flow of vehicular travel. The above view drawn from an elevation on the Whitehall street viaduct, and looking eastward, shows Wall street elevated to the viaduct level, which is 18 feet above the tracks. The new roadway of Wall street from Whitehall to Pryor will be 24 feet wide with a six-foot sidewalk on the north side. From Pryor street to Central avenue the roadway will be 48 feet between curbs with six-foot sidewalks.

Construction of connected elevated sidewalks on the southern side of the viaducts will be optional with owners of abutting property and the expense will be borne by them, according to the tentative plan. A fund of $1,950,000 will be needed to push the work to completion, it is estimated. The city of Atlanta is to furnish $1,000,000 and Fulton county, the Georgia Power company and railroads affected are to supply the additional amount needed.

Depression of train tracks 5.2 feet at Pryor street and 6.4 feet at the Central avenue crossing will permit erection of the new bridges on practically the same elevation as the Whitehall and Forsyth viaducts, and yet comply with interstate commerce bridge regulations providing a clearance of 18 feet above the tracks.

Spans Will Open Up Two New Arteries in Heart of City To Speed Vehi- cular Traffic.

Actual construction of Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts will begin within four months, it was announced Monday morning when revised drawings were received from Walter F. Schulz, of Memphis, consulting engineer.

Work will continue night and day until they are completed, an estimated time of 18 months, according to specification which accompanied the draft. Detailed drawing will be begun just as soon as city, county, state, railroad and Georgia Power company officials approve the revised plans. It will take about three months to complete these, and bids can be advertised for immediately.

Although the city has provided only $1,000,000 for construction of the bridges in the $8,000,000 bond issue voted last year, the county, railroads involved and the power company are slated to supplement this fund by approximately $950,000, the remaining money needed.

Principal drawings showing how the completed bridges will look and how they will dovetail into other viaducts already spanning the tracks leading into the Union station are shown in this issue of The Constitution for the first time. W. R. Cole, of Louisville, president of the L. & N. J. B. Hill, of Nashville, president of the N. C. & St. L., Charles A. Wickham, president of the Georgia railroad; J. J. Peller, of Savannah, president of the Central of Georgia, state officials, members of Fulton county commissioners, representatives of the Georgia Power company, and others involved already have tentatively at least approved the revised plan on which the drawings, which Mr. Schulz forwarded to city and bond commission officials Monday, are based.

Copies of the revised plans Monday afternoon were forwarded to each of the officials and letters accompanying the drawings asked each to mail his approval at once to William A. Hamsell, chief of construction.

FOUR FACE TRIAL TODAY AT TOCCOA

Men Accused With W. G. A. Cree. Convicted in Bowers Whipping, To Be Given Hearing.

Toocoo, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Four men accused of assault with intent to murder in connection with the flogging of Mrs. Ansley Bowers by a band of robbers and hooded men will be called for trial here tomorrow, three days after a superior court jury had convicted W. G. A. Cree, jointly indicted with them and the first to go to trial, of participating in the attack.

They are: Claude Groover, local automobile dealer; T. R. Lowry, furniture factory worker, and Elmer Clark and Charlie Thomas, railroad workers. Each is expected to claim an alibi as did Cree, former principal of the Stephens county high school. Three of them laid the ground work for such a defense when they testified at Cree's trial. Lowry and Clark said they were at home ministering to ailing children at the time the state charged they helped administer a flogging to Mrs. Bowers early on the morning of June 12, and Groover declared he was at home in bed.

The state originally had planned to call the cases of Cree and three other men charged with flogging Bart Singleton, a farmer, but Solicitor General Robert McMillan announced tonight it had been decided to dispose of the Bowers case first. Witnesses who had been summoned in the Singleton case, however, will be retained with the intention of the prosecution to try it later in the week if possible.

May Try All Four.
Unlike the case of Cree, the state elected to try alone, the solicitor expects to try the four men together. The defense, however, will have the privilege of moving for severances. Its plans in this respect were not revealed tonight, but counsel for the four men announced ready for the trial.

Churchmen Voice Disfavor As New Marriage Bill Passes

Presbyterians and Baptists acting to achieve the defeat of the marriage license bill now in the Georgia assembly, saw the senate Monday pass the bill which would not require five-day notification of intent to marry by persons over 21 years of age by a vote of 41 to 5 and send the measure to the house for action.

Efforts to change the present marriage license laws of Georgia were viewed "with profound concern" Monday in resolutions passed by the Atlanta Presbytery about the same time the bill in question was being overwhelmingly voted by the senate. The presbytery charged that efforts being made in the legislature, if successful, would "destroy its (present marriage license law) practical force and value to the moral interests of society."

The presbytery, in its resolutions, also urged against the enactment of a law, the effect of which would be the practical nullification of the 14th amendment and its supporting statutes.

A third part of the resolutions is directed against "the modification of the law relating to Sunday work and amusements, which at present place no limitation of any kind upon amusements which are not commercialized."

and to open the way for commercialized theatrical, baseball and other entertainments, which also involves the removal from labor of its present exemption from being compelled by contractors to labor on Sunday."

The Baptist ministers' conference at Atlanta and the Georgia Street Presbyterian church also took action condemning bills presented to the legislature.

The Baptists' conference announced their emphatic opposition to a bill which would require a warrant for the searching of automobiles to take evidence in prohibition law violation actions and the marriage license bill.

SEABOARD PLANS GEORGIA LINK

Road From Albany to Quitman via Moultrie May Be Built as Connecting Line.

Albany, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Plans of the Seaboard Air Line railroad for building a line from Albany to Quitman, Ga., via Moultrie as a link between its routes north and west and the west Florida coast, were made public here tonight, contingent upon acquisition of rights of way and permission from the interstate commerce commission.

The announcement was made in behalf of S. Davis Warfield, president of the road by Mayor E. H. Kalmon, at a mass meeting of citizens called by directors of the local chamber of commerce to devise methods of obtaining the rights of way necessary to the development program.

It was pointed out that the proposed new line largely would parallel the present route of the Georgia Northern railroad from Albany to Moultrie.

It was said that the Seaboard holds an option on the South Georgia railroad, which runs south of Quitman to Perry, Fla., and it was considered likely that its development program calls for connections south of Perry with its main lines to Tampa, Miami and St. Petersburg.

It also is understood here that plans contemplate an Albany-Atlanta and an Albany-Montgomery line. Completion of such a program would make this city an important link at the head of the Seaboard's southern outlet to Florida via the proposed new line and the junction of its lines from the north and west.

Initial Round Lost By Income Tax Bill In Committee Fight

JOINT COMMITTEE STRONGLY OPPOSES HIGHWAY MEASURE

Thompson Bill Providing State Construction of Roads Is Shelved Until Wednesday.

Strong opposition to the Thompson highway bill developed Monday night in its open hearing before a joint session of the senate and house public highway committees, and after two hours and a half of discussion the meeting ended in a deadlock with action deferred until a similar session, set for Wednesday night.

Owing to the illness of the bill's author, Senator A. T. Thompson, of LaGrange, action on the matter has been deferred, since it was jointly introduced to both houses at the outset of the general assembly.

Without change in status of the present highway fund, the bill would provide for construction of 7,000 miles of state highway, 2,800 miles of which would be primary in consideration, and the remainder secondary, to be paved on completion of the former segment.

300 Miles Per Year.
Under the program outlined, six or seven years should see complete paving of the primary highways, at three or four hundred miles per annum.

It was estimated that $9,000,000 will be available for road work during 1928, the funds being derived from gasoline and auto license funds and the federal aid of $2,000,000.

Ninety-two cents on each dollar will be applied directly to construction and maintenance contracts and no aid will be sought of counties, although provision has been made to allow the state to borrow county funds for primary systems should the contingency arise.

The first and second highways will be designated by the state highway commission after a traffic census has been made, the latter highways being therefore main trunk lines through the state. These classifications will be published six months prior to construction work.

The bill to repay approximately $14,000,000 borrowed by the state from the counties when the primary highways are completed, the rate of payment not to exceed 20 per cent per annum.

Emergency Fund.
Sixty per cent of the entire fund will go toward paving the first highway.

H. H. Elder's Measure Defeated in Senate Body on First Hearing by Nine-to-Five Vote.

MEASURE UP AGAIN AT SESSION TODAY

Proposed Law Seeks To Have Levy of 3% on Incomes To Be Used for Educational Purposes.

Income tax for educational purposes in Georgia lost the first round here Monday by a five-to-nine vote in the senate's committee on constitutional amendments for an adverse report on the bill of Senator H. H. Elder, of Reidsville. The bill seeks to have decided at next year's election whether the constitution shall be so changed as to allow the general assembly to levy such a tax, on net incomes, not to exceed three per cent. One-third of the estimated revenue of $4,000,000 a year would be allocated to the state institutions of higher education and the remaining two-thirds to the common school fund for equalization as between the "woods" schools and those in stronger counties, better able to take care of their educational problems.

Rounds two and three will be fought today when Senator Elder and his four supporters on the committee file a minority report, and when the house's constitutional amendments committee takes up a similar bill.

When the outcome of Monday's hearing was announced, Senator Elder issued a statement declaring that "the bill will come to a vote yet on the floor of the senate, so that the people may see who is for and who is against it. I will see to that myself."

The senator from the second district was the sole supporter of his measure in the open hearing. Opposing him were John Slater, former governor, and representatives of the Georgia Manufacturers' association and of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

He, Mr. Slater, was raised by T. M. Brumby, of Marietta, president of the manufacturers' organization, as a description of the whole theory of income taxes.

"The sole difference between the capitalist of Russia in the early days of the revolutionary movement here, and the American capitalist of July 11, 1927," he said, "is one of $61.2 per cent. The communist state confiscated 100 per cent of their property, and the United States government is confiscating 13.2 per cent of the manufacturer's accumulated capital by refusing him the profit thereon, which finally amounts to the same as though it took the property itself."

In defense of his bill Senator Elder ridiculed the idea of income tax as a communist proposition and declared it to be "the one safe and equitable method left to us whereby we can raise the money for our educational system, particularly the 'woods' schools, where the barefooted sons and daughters of our dirt farmers get their education, must and shall have."

Slater, Brumby, George W. West, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and R. S. Parker, counsel for the manufacturers' association, all advanced the contention that industries are being driven from the New England states, mentioning Massachusetts as a particular example, by the very tax system which Elder would seek to impose here, and that imposition of

W. I. BENNETT NEAR DEATH OF POISON

W. I. Bennett, 49, of 1145 Briarcliff road, was taken to Georgia Baptist hospital unconscious and in a dangerous condition Monday night from the effects of an iodine dose taken during the day in a room at a downtown hotel, according to police reports.

Bennett, it was said, registered at the hotel Monday morning about 10 o'clock and as far as could be learned never left the room after being shown there by a porter.

Police learned from the hotel clerk that several persons called early Monday night and inquired if Mr. Bennett was registered. When they were told his room number, one of them asked that the house detective accompany them to the room. When the door was opened Mr. Bennett's unconscious form was lying across the bed and by his side was an empty bottle which contained a quantity of the poison.

One of the men who visited Mr. Bennett's room when he was found was said to be an associate in business, but that fact could not be verified last night. He was said to be an employee of a local bottling company.

Plan Shows Property City Must Acquire for Building Viaducts

A portion of the affected area in the proposed construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts is shown in the above drawing, made by Walter F. Schulz, of Memphis, consulting engineer.

Shaded portions on Central avenue total 570.15 feet which the city must acquire in addition to 247 feet which it will get from the Western and Atlantic railroad. The property to be acquired begins 105 feet south of the intersection of Central avenue and Hunter street and runs in a northerly direction. It is on the western side of the street.

Acquisition of the new land will permit construction of the Central avenue bridge 95 feet wide after providing for six-foot sidewalks on the west side and five feet on the east, leaving a roadway 84 feet wide from Hunter street on the south to the southern end of the Union station. The roadway would be 48 feet from the Union station north to the terminus of the approach at Decatur street with six-foot sidewalks.

In consideration for the easement which the Western and Atlantic railroad is to give for construction of the Central avenue project, the city is to open a new street running from Wall street to Decatur street, between Central and Pryor. This, too, is shown shaded, and would partially compensate the road by permitting ingress and egress at the Union station.

The projected limit of the approach on the southern extremity of the Central avenue bridge is 105 feet south of Hunter street, but the grade of Hunter street will not be more than a few feet at the intersection. The grade from Hunter to the center of the viaduct will be 4.95 per cent, which is admitted to be steep, but which was done to avoid changing the grades of Hunter street on the south and Decatur street on the north. Grade on the northern approach is 4.95 per cent also, but will end about the center of Decatur street and will not change the grade of Decatur.

Necessary grade changes on Hunter street will be almost negligible, and will remain at practically the present levels.

Alabama street approach, which is optional, will begin at Whitehall street, according to the revised plans, and will extend in an easterly direction almost on a level until it joins the Pryor street project. This will necessitate construction of building fronts along the route to the new level, because of the steep drop easterly on Alabama at the present time.

Wall street will be elevated to the level of the new structures, and a new bridge to Central avenue is optional with the city, it is expected that an attempt to put it through will be made.

This would be almost on a level, but as has been pointed out would necessitate remodeling of buildings along the route in conformity with the new levels, due to the present steep grade of the project at Decatur street to the abutment at the Union station. This is shown in dark shading.

The Pryor street approach on the northern side of the project will end at Decatur street and will not require a change of grade of Decatur, although construction of the Alabama street viaduct from Whitehall to Pryor street and from the Pryor street bridge to Central avenue is optional with the city, it is expected that an attempt to put it through will be made.

Railroads have agreed tentatively to the lowering, and are expected to ratify the new plans so that work can be begun within the next four months, according to city and bond commission officials Monday.

Lowering of the tracks of railroads 5.2 ft. Pryor street and 6.4 ft. at Central avenue permits approaches to be much shorter and obviates the necessity of constructing approaches which would force drastic changes of grades of Hunter and Decatur streets. This, it has been pointed out, has saved millions of dollars worth of damage to centrally located business property.

Railroads have agreed tentatively to the lowering, and are expected to ratify the new plans so that work can be begun within the next four months, according to city and bond commission officials Monday.

Lowering of the tracks of railroads 5.2 ft. Pryor street and 6.4 ft. at Central avenue permits approaches to be much shorter and obviates the necessity of constructing approaches which would force drastic changes of grades of Hunter and Decatur streets. This, it has been pointed out, has saved millions of dollars worth of damage to centrally located business property.

ST. JOHNS PLANS TO GREET FLIER

BY JAMES S. COLLINS.
(Copyright, 1927, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
St. Johns, Newfoundland, July 11.—A fussy tug stood by in Conception bay today to keep a rendezvous with the big all-metal flying boat in which Captain Frank T. Courtney hopes this week to fight through the ugly elements that guard the western portal of the Atlantic.

Refreshment in the form of 1,000 gallons of drink of specially prepared ethyl gasoline and a liberal chaser of lubricating oil awaits the sturdy Dornier Napier if she lands off top sail, as her pilot expects, with the distinction of being the first heavier than air machine to negotiate the treacherous westward passage that led heroic Nungesser and Coli to disaster.

The remainder of the 2,000 gallons of gasoline which were shipped from Montreal to the Imperial Oil Limited, on the orders of the Anglo-American Oil company, of London, will be fed to the giant plane when she returns from New York to draw a long breath at top sail for the dash back.

Short Visit
With the refueling instructions came orders from Captain Courtney to have the plane ready to hop for New York within four hours after she alights in Conception bay. It all goes well, therefore, Newfoundland will see little of Courtney and his crew until they return from New York to hop for home.

That fact, however, will in no wise diminish the cordiality of the welcome the Dominion of Canada will extend to Britain's first aerial ambassadors to her oldest colony. Sir William Alard, governor of Newfoundland, Sir John R. Bennett, colonial secretary, and Honorable Tasker Cook.

SCIENCE AMAZED AS NATURE REVEALS SECRET OF HUMAN HEALTH

Most Human Ills From Blood, Say Doctors, as Mountain Gives Up Miraculous Mineral.

Blood Needs Iron Supplied By Mineral-Tone

The consensus of the world's best medical opinion is that 90 per cent of all human ailments originate in weak, rundown and impure blood. It is announced as hundreds report that ailments originating in these conditions are quickly overcome, after all man-made medicines had failed, by Mineral-Tone, the amazing product of Nature, taken from the heart of Turkey Mountain.

Doctors, scientists, the whole general public, stand amazed as they witness the quick change that comes over those who are rundown, losing weight, suffering from terrible stomach troubles, rheumatism, boils, eczema and many other ailments, when Mineral-Tone is absorbed into their blood, and starts to drive out the poisons and microbes that are coursing through these suffering human frames. One prominent Southern physician, indeed, reports that patients put under Mineral-Tone treatment gained from 6 to 10 pounds in the first month, and showed new appetite, new "pep," demonstrating that Mineral-Tone has supplied precisely the blood-tonic and purifier needed by all mankind.

Rich in Soluble Iron.

It is explained by authorities that the iron in Mineral-Tone is highly concentrated, and soluble so that it is absorbed quickly by the blood, going within a few moments to all parts of the human system, and beginning the God-given work of restoring strength and vitality to every part. Chemists, analyzing this profoundly important discovery, find that it is composed of 75 per cent iron with other health-giving minerals, fused together in a way that no laboratory can duplicate. Nature has made Mineral-Tone. Man cannot make it. Man does not even touch it, adding no drugs, no alcohol, changing it in no way. Hence in Mineral-Tone you have the blood tonic that a Divine Providence intended for you to have, to stop your pain, to make you well, strong and healthy again.

Through the operations of a great concern, founded by public-spirited Georgians to distribute Mineral-Tone to a suffering public, you may now secure it at good drugists everywhere. Should your drug store be out of Mineral-Tone and your case an urgent one, send $1.25 to Mineral-Tone Inc., Wayne-Claughton building, Atlanta, Georgia, and a package will be rushed to you, postpaid.

Georgia Troopers Ready To Entrain For Oglethorpe

Preparations for the entrainment Sunday of the Governor's Horse Guard, officially known as troop C, 108th cavalry, G. N. A., for Port Oglethorpe have been completed, according to announcement Monday. The troop will leave its army on North Boulevard road in the morning, arriving on the same day at the fort, where it will go into annual encampment for two weeks.

In command of the troop are Captain J. S. Slicer, First Lieutenant Theodore Goulsby and Second Lieutenant Wesley U. Morgan. The horse guard is the crack troop of the 108th and while at camp last year carried off all first prizes for efficiency as well as the Major J. O. Semmens trophy. Practically the entire enlisted personnel and officers will depart for the fort this year.

Besides the regular duties of the soldier in camp, the horsemen will engage in athletic and social activities. A repetition of last year's successful horse show is being planned along with a track and field meet. These events will bring together the men from the entire first squadron, comprised of troop A, of Savannah; troop B, of Hinesville, and troop C, of Atlanta.

Saturday night, July 22, officers and men of the horse guard will be host to the other outfits at a dance given in the post gymnasium. A number of guests, motoring to the fort for the dance, will remain until Sunday, when they will go with the entire troop for a morning ride through Chickamauga park, after which dinner will be served in the mess hall.

STONE MOUNTAIN PARK BILL URGED

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
A memorial requesting the Georgia legislature to pass a pending bill conferring the right of eminent domain upon the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association to enable the association to acquire ground for a public park front of the monument was presented in the senate Monday by the executive council of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

The memorial, adopted by the council at a special meeting Monday, said in part:

"We have always indorsed the Confederate memorial being carved on Stone Mountain and the present administration and officers of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association, which is doing the work. We feel that they have done a great work and we feel that it is possible under the difficulties encountered. We feel that these difficulties have all come from a small, willful group, most of them misled and misinformed, and that this group has taken the position it at present occupies through the instigation of certain people who seem to be bent on supporting the sculptor whom it was necessary to dismiss."

"The Sons of Confederate Veterans are backing the association and are now putting on, under our own auspices, an intensive campaign to assist in this work."

"However, reviewing the past, we feel that the best thing that the legislature of Georgia can do for this monument is to put the association in a position where it will not be subjected to this constant slowing up of their plans and work by the aggressions heaped upon them."

The memorial concluded by saying that the council believes the legislature should "place this monument on their plans and work by giving what this bill calls for in a perfectly proper way—the right to acquire at a fairly appraised valuation the ground necessary to carry out the plan around with the proper conditions, so that the public may enjoy this magnificent work."

NAPIER WILL SUE TO GET SHORTAGE

Attorney General George M. Napier will bring suit against bondsmen of Charles A. Cook, former cashier of the state motor vehicle department, and also against the bondsmen of Secretary of State S. G. McLendon, to recover $8,389 alleged shortage in the accounts of this department. The shortage recently was made public by Mr. Cook after a negro porter, Charles Wilkes, had been arrested when he was caught in the act of removing money from the office safe. The proceedings against the bondsmen will be brought to comply with the law covering the case.

Details of the legal phases of the suit were outlined by Secretary McLendon in the following letter written to Attorney General Napier.

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 9, in which you advise that you will institute suit on the bond of C. A. Cook, the bonding company having refused to pay the shortage."

"The condition of Mr. Cook's bond was that he and his bondsmen bind themselves to pay to S. G. McLendon, secretary of state, such pecunia loss, not exceeding five thousand ($5,000) dollars, as the latter shall have sustained of money or other personal property (including that for which the employer is responsible), by any act or acts of fraud, dishonesty, forgery, theft, embezzlement, wrongful abstraction or willful misapplication on the part of the employee, directly or through connivance with others, while in any position or at any location in the employ of the employer."

"Mr. Cook's bonding company declines to pay such bond because they have been notified by Cook that he has not in any way breached the fidelity bond we executed covering him and has put us on notice that to make a payment under this bond would be at our own peril."

"You further advise that it would be necessary to bring suit on my official bond of $10,000, calling on me to account for all money coming into my hands as said official."

"The condition of my bond is that I will faithfully discharge the duties of said office of secretary of state during the time he continues therein."

"The duties put upon the secretary of state are set out in volume 1, of Park's code, section 1, chapter 2, and this law requires of the secretary a faithful account of all the public money or effects that may come into his hands during his continuance in office."

"I do not believe any court or jury would hold me liable for money that never came into my hands. I believe I would be responsible for all money coming into this office by check or money order, because it would be necessary for me to indorse the same in order to collect the same, and my indorsement would place it in my hands. In the matter of the Cook shortage I do not believe my official bond is morally bound to make that good."

WINGARD CHOOSES TERM, NO APPEAL

Guy Wingard, youthful convicted slayer of his 17-year-old sweetheart, Jewel Duncan, will serve the 15-months-to-three-year sentence recommended by a jury in Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's division of Fulton superior court late Saturday.

This became known Monday morning when Attorney William Schley Howard withdrew the motion for a new trial filed following the youth's sentence by the court and stated that he had appealed to the prison commission to allow the term to be served at the state prison farm on account of the ill health of his client.

Wingard was charged with the fatal shooting of Miss Duncan in her East Fair street home on May 6. The state contended that the killing was "dastardly, cowardly and premeditated murder," while the defense contended that the shooting was accidental.

Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens represented the state and Attorney James A. Branch, Clarence Minor and William Schley Howard were employed by Wingard.

John Rounsaville To Be Electrocut At State Farm Today

Summersville, Ga., July 11.—(Special.)—John Rounsaville, young negro, who confessed to the slaying of his stepson, George Rounsaville, an infant, and sentenced to be electrocuted Tuesday, has been transferred to the state prison, where the execution will take place. Rounsaville has been in the Chatscooke county jail here for nearly two years, the killing having been done the latter part of September, 1925. In admitting the killing, Rounsaville told officers that he beat the child over the head with his fist and then wrung his neck until it was broken.

Here's Protection Easily Within Every Man's Means

Why take chances? In time of war you can't avoid it; if you feel an irrepressible desire to fly across the Atlantic, risk is a matter of course—but in the face of the ever-mounting accident toll there is no necessity for financial insecurity.

The answer to the problem of protecting one's self and one's loved ones against an abrupt halt in income or a future of helplessness is Constitution insurance.

For the sum of only $1.25 per year—a fraction of a penny a day and an investment easily within the means of every man and woman in Georgia—The Constitution offers you the famous $7,500 travel accident policy of the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago.

Already more than $50,000 has been paid on claims of Constitution policyholders.

The policy provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain accidents; heavy cash payments for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the stated accidents.

A train wreck, a crash of automobiles, the speeding wheels of an on-rushing car or a burning building may leave you a victim of the ever-growing wave of accidents today.

In this paper appear regularly advertisements supplying full details of the great offer. Watch for them. This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 pedestrian accident policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of a subscription.

through the air at high speed yet few decades ago the delivery of a letter in these western parts was fraught with the greatest hazards both of life and property.

Tonight as the twenty-seven riders rode on the mission, they traveled over the same Cheyenne-Deadwood stagecoach route. The riders of the trail were ambushing Indians and marauding bad men were looked for at every turn. Now the trail was over more graded and gravelled roads through peaceful valleys turned to the production of crops.

The end of the 270-mile journey which began at Cheyenne this morning lies at the summer white court house in Rapid City. The governor of Wyoming, who was expected to come here by airplane, President Coolidge will receive the last rider—I hope Clyde Jones tomorrow afternoon.

Twenty-seven riders will have, each, honor of distinguished Wyoming, Nebraska and South Dakota citizens.

A commissioner's term expires on January 1 instead of June as at present.

Representative Rutland, of Lee, introduced the fertilizer inspection bill. In response to the Governor, Emerson introduced two of the bills while measure providing for the abolition of the department of entomology was introduced by Representative Coffey of Colorado. These bills were framed along suggestions recently made by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture.

In regulation of the sale of seed is provided in a bill introduced by Representative Matthews, of Harlan county. This is known as the "pure seed bill" and is designed to prohibit the sale of inferior seed. A bill providing for the establishment of a state police force was introduced by Representative Rivers, of Wheeler county.

Senator Reed Today.

The outstanding business of the legislative program for Tuesday as from the introduction of the new gasoline tax bill will be the appearance of Senator Reed. He has been in charge of the arrangements for his senatorial appearance here is headed by Former Governor Thomas Hardwick. A reception at the Capitol will be given him. It is expected Tuesday will be one of the most affairs arranged in honor of the Missouri senator.

An important committee meeting will be held Tuesday, one of which the meeting of the house committee on constitutional amendments which will consider the Doyal income tax legislation. The committee will meet in the house. This session will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in room 3 of the Kimball hotel. At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the banks and banking committees of the house and senate will meet to consider measures providing for a reorganization of the state banking department and a consolidation of the banks under the State Bankers association.

TELEPHONE RATES

Hearing on a petition of the Georgia Power company for a 10-cent street car fare in Atlanta will open this morning before the Georgia public utility commission. The hearing drew a large number of protests from those heard against the proposed increase from seven cents to a dime.

Organizations and individuals have filed petitions against the increase petitioned by the power company, and it is expected that another lot of protesters will appear before the commission.

The hearing is set for 9 o'clock.

The power company, in its petition, alleges that it does not receive a fair return on the amount of its capitalization devoted exclusively to trolley transportation, while its opponents claim that the company receives a huge return on all its operations, including electric lights and power as well as street car transportation and that a great deal of the operating expense of the trolleys is being thrown into the rates for electricity or current and other expenses.

Following is the report of the street railways operations for three months:

March ... $462,906 353,530 106.7
April ... 465,393 353,289 106.6

The report of the sale of electricity by the Georgia Power company for the same period follows:

Revenues Expenses
February $794,822 $216,682 $578,140
March ... 746,535 211,082 535,453
April ... 77,030 197,290 574,260

Reports from the sale of electricity by the same company add a net profit of approximately $100,000 per month to the April report showing revenues less expenditures for the month of $119,251.12, leaving a net income of $91,833.31 for the month from gas sales.

This analysis of the operating expenses of the street railway system for the month of April shows the following expenditures: For maintenance, $47,115.54; for power, $285,812.40; for depreciation, $10,000.00; for traffic, $172,290.00; renewals and replacement reserves, $13,056.74; taxes, $43,369.01; general expenses, $14,000.00; and interest, $134.88; total operating expenses, $329,269.82.

Acts Needed To Aid In Law Enforcement,
Says Judge Pittman

Cartersville, Ga., July 11.—(Special.)—Bartow superior court, Judge Claude C. Pittman on the bench, today issued a ruling that the law is unusually "ignorant" charge Judge Pittman, who laid before the grand jury a remarkably interesting statement of the law which governs the relations between the state and the individual, said he believed the course of his remarks he told of many barriers which have been raised through the years against administration of the laws, particularly by the criminal statute of Georgia in the past 20 years," said, "175,000 people have been murdered in this country and only 1,500... this number have suffered death sentences. During the other 173,500, there are 18,000 in the penitentiary and 20,000 have died. The other 133,500 persons who have taken human life walk and eat joyfully the fruits of the earth and their victims sleep the last cold sleep of death. Our record in punishment is about the same as that of the nation. A conviction for murder is the exception rather than the rule and we are a religious people, and our native stock, while many other sections are irreligious and of foreign birth."

The first great trouble with enforcing the law against murder and other laws is that the legislature always passing laws to protect criminals and nothing to help enforce the law. If the legislature now session will pass no new laws, except some that would provide machinery for enforcing existing laws, it would render the greatest service any legislature has rendered in behalf of the people since the days of the American revolution."

SPOTLIGHTING THE SOLONS

BY SAM W. SMALL

Vital Measures That Should Have the Active Backing of Good Citizens.

PENSIONS FOR POLICEMEN

The Fulton delegation has with drawn from the house its bill to provide police pensions in cities of 150,000 or more inhabitants. Doubtless the trustees of the voluntary police pension fund have invoked plausible reasons why the old veterans of the force, who had to retire for age and infirmity before the hale and lusty men took control of the fund, should be kept down to the shortest of rations. Those old men are so few that they can no longer exert much political pull and therefore it seems perfectly proper to graciously give them a Chinaman's "hand-out."

BLOCKING PROXY STATE DEBTS

Since it has been decided that the state shall ultimately reimburse counties for bonds issued to aid in the construction of state roads, the actual bonded debt of the state now takes on $14,000,000 of those proxy bonds. That brings the state's bonded debt close to $20,000,000.

All that increment over the normal debt of $5,194,000 is quite unconstitutional, but "what the constitution between friends" like the highway board and fraternal county authorities?

But Representative Howard, of Chatham, has taken the time to come to put a stop to this indirect process of increasing the state debt by county road issues to be repaid from state highway funds of future years. His bill to block that business at once and permanently has received the approval of all authorities and certainly should obtain unopposed enactment. It does not prevent the counties from improving their own roads, or providing right of way for a state road, but does stop them from trading with the highway board on the basis of the state's credit.

UNHITCHING HYMEN

The senate has passed the very proper bill to unhitch the requirement that couples over 21 years of age who wish to wed shall post advance notice of their desire for five days. Such a regulation is a perfectly silly one in spite of the views favorable to it expressed by some ministers of the churches.

In this country folks who are "free, white and twenty-one" are legally responsible. They are supposed to know their own minds and wishes. When they satisfy the licensing authorities that they are age-qualified for marriage, why make them tell the cock-eyed world?

UNLAWFUL SEIZURES

Surely the gospel preachers of the state do not want to see men prosecuted, convicted and sent to prison upon evidence unlawfully seized by officers without the warrants demanded by the constitutions of the United States and this state?

Have they ever read in the constitution of Georgia that "first in authority" in this state is "the constitution of the United States"? And then did they turn to it and read there that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Those same words are copied into the constitution of Georgia. There is nothing said in either document about "his house is his castle" and similar rhetoric. The automobile of a known, or reasonably suspected, run-rigger is not sacred and can be searched and seized without a warrant, but that does not mean that prohibition road-agents can stop and search the lives and property of anybody coming down the pike.

I know more than one preacher who either should study law, or hire a lawyer before he risks his reputation for intelligence by criticizing the acts of experienced legislators.

A STATE POLICE FORCE

The identical bills of Senator Jordan and Representative Rivers to create a state police force for Georgia, comprising 200 men with the same powers as other peace officers, constitute an institution almost imperatively needed in the state. The protection of the people and the enforcement of law and order will be more surely and perfectly guaranteed by the creation of such a police force. The writer has had frequent occasions to watch and judge the operations of similar forces in this country and, without stating their duties, he strongly favors our having such a mobile and militant body of law enforcers in this state.

BRITISH TO MAKE NEW NAVAL OFFER

BY HENRY WOOD

Geneva, July 11.—(United News.) New British proposals have halted a week-long slide of naval limitation negotiations toward the precipice of total disagreement.

A plenary session, at which delegates were to have stated their divergent views, was postponed Monday indefinitely.

Informal conversations between American and British delegates were resumed immediately.

Monday night the situation was described as "hopeful" again.

Hope rests upon new instructions received overnight by W. C. Bridgman, head of the British delegation.

These, it is understood, offer the following solution for the question of total cruiser tonnage on which Britain and the United States have been unable to agree.

Britain would be allowed to retain in excess of any total cruiser figure that might be agreed upon, those cruisers that had passed the efficient age limit of such ships.

An equal figure of cruisers of combat value to be maintained by America and England would be worked out separately.

Thus Anglo-American equality would be established as regards cruisers of theoretical fighting value. Theoretically obsolete cruisers, retained in addition by Britain, would be used in defense of coasts and protection of trade routes in the vicinity of naval bases.

Negotiations between Bridgman and Hugh Gibson, chief American delegate, were resumed during the day on this basis.

L. R. ADAMS LISTS

$213,000 IN DEBTS, $2,500 IN ASSETS

L. R. Adams, former official of the defunct Bankers' Trust company, who was convicted in United States district court several months ago on charges of using the mails to defraud in company with other defunct officials of the company, Monday filed an answer in district court to involuntary bankruptcy proceedings brought by creditors.

In his schedule filed Monday, Adams lists liabilities of $213,194.35 against assets of $2,500.47. Adams also lists a schedule that he owes $98,830.75 secured by $82,000, a total of $137,212.78 in unsecured claims, $8,850 in claims in action, and $190.80 on debts preferred by law. He asks for an exemption of $150 for personal belongings.

SMITH TO START HONOLULU FLIGHT

NEXT THURSDAY

San Francisco, July 11.—(United News.)—With Captain Emory B. Bronte as his navigator, Ernest Smith will take off from Bay Farm Island airport, Oakland, Thursday morning for Honolulu, according to an announcement made by Captain William H. Royle, Smith's flight manager.

Final preparations are being made on the rebuilt travel air monoplane following a week-end trip to Santa Monica and return, and everything is in readiness for the resumption of Smith's flight which was started and stopped for a yet unexplained reason, June 28.

Bronte served in the navy during the war, and in recent years has sailed on merchant ships. He is holder of an unlimited master's license for all waters.

If for any reason Bronte should be unable to accompany Smith, Lieutenant Commander Henry U. Linkins, U. S. N. R. F., will take his place, according to Royle.

French "Tiger" Lies Prostrate Awaiting Death

Paris, July 11.—(United News.)—Georges Clemenceau, "the tiger of France," lies prostrate in his bed, his enfeebled body unable to rise, visualizing retrospectively his 86 crowded years, awaiting the death that doctors fear is fast approaching.

He has been confined for a fortnight to his apartment. He is unable to get out of bed.

Members of his family are remaining beside him. There have been many other visitors, but they were refused admission.

"M. Le President is very tired," they were told.

One of them was Minister of Marine Leveque. Another woman, was told he could receive no visitors "for several days."

The title "president" is that accorded for life to one who has been premier, or president of the council of ministers.

During the day Premier Poincare sent his chief secretary to inquire about the aged statesman.

Clemenceau was able to eat a little chicken at lunch time.

His memory failing, he had no recollection of having seen members of his family Sunday night.

He seems ready to die.

DE MILLE GETS HIS USURY TRIAL POSTPONED WEEK

Los Angeles, July 11.—(United News.)—De Mille, motion picture producer, appeared in municipal court here today and obtained a delay of a week in which to enter a plea to a charge of usury in connection with the Julian Petroleum corporation stock scandal.

De Mille is under indictment charged with collecting a large sum in illegal interest on a loan to the oil concern, which collapsed several months ago following the revelation of a huge overissue of stock.

Plea of not guilty was entered in another court by Charles W. Stinson, president of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, and John E. Barber, president of the First Securities company, to four felony charges growing out of the Julian high finance. The bankers are alleged to have accepted a $100,000 bonus on a loan to the Julian corporation.

NEGROES ARE URGED TO STICK TO JOBS

Palmetto, Ga., July 11.—(Special.)—Rev. R. D. Stinson, speaking to the members and delegates of the Allen Christian Endeavor League of the A. M. E. church here, which was in session under the direction of Presiding Elder J. H. McFarlin, of the Atlanta district, said:

"The young folks of our church and race have remarkable opportunities to improve ourselves for everyday things of life. It is expected of us by the best people of both races in the various communities from which we come. Somehow too large a number of us have come to town and we are not giving as good account of ourselves as many of the best people of our race that we would."

Stinson told how he and his friends had moved the Atlanta Normal and Industrial Institute from Griffin street just off the Mason and Turner road, 512 miles west of Atlanta, for the sole purpose of helping the colored youth to aid in making the negro youth useful and creditable. He told the young people how the negro of other days had attempted to make life acceptable among the very people where they were born, and said that the negro with intelligent Christianity and the Christian school room ought to be able to do more.

The speaker referred to conditions between the two races and brought out the idea that the accredited leaders of the race understood each other and the conditions which surround them, and thought that if each one could keep busy each day they would find that what is regarded as ill will between the two races is but misunderstanding.

He urged the young people to get a job and stick to it, saying it is a dangerous thing to be idle.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

No. 2 South one Club; West should double.

No. 3 South one Heart, West pass; North should bid one No Trump.

No. 4 South one Club, West one Heart, North pass; East should pass.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 1. Many players bid two No Trumps initially in conventional showing of four Aces; and to shut out lead-directing adverse bids. Others strenuously object to the two-bid. As a matter of fact, this two-bid is advantageous in some cases, but works badly in others. Either one or two is correct.

No. 2. With "one hundred Aces" it requires a suit in favor of South to frair from bidding No Trump over a suit-bid of one, but the chances are greater for game at partner's suit than at No Trump. At No Trump the adverse suit is apt to be established when Declarer obtains the lead; and then, unless he can take the next trick, the adversaries probably will save game. At partner's suit, the chances for game are more promising.

No. 3. Although the hand practically insures game for partner's Heart, it is almost as surely a game-goer at No Trump, and the honor score is much larger.

No. 4. This differs from No. 3 in two respects, viz: an adverse suit has been bid initially, and partner's Heart has been a following—not an initial—bid. Under these conditions, game at Hearts is more probable than at No Trumps.

AERIAL SURVEYORS KILLED IN FALL

Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 11.—(United News.) Three members of the Manitoba aerial photographic survey party were killed near Fairford, Man., this afternoon, when in some unexplained manner they fell from the machine, a distance of about 1,000 feet.

The dead are Flight Officer W. C. Weaver, of Melfort, Sask., pilot in charge; A. T. Harley, photographic mechanic of Loere, Man.; F. J. Wrong, surveyor of the topographical survey branch, Ottawa.

Eye-witnesses telling of the accident say the plane entered a cloud bank. Lost to view for several minutes, the plane later was observed following an erratic course through the fleeting clouds. The watchers were suddenly startled to see three men come hurtling through the air, and the machine follow in a nose dive to earth.

Gangsters Laugh Over Execution Method Debate

Benton, Ill., July 11.—(United News.) Three gangsters had a good laugh today as humorless attorneys wrangled over a fine point of law—how the gangsters shall be put to death if they are convicted.

"Machine Gun" Charlie Birger, leader of the once powerful gang operating under his name; Art Newman, his former lieutenant, now his mortal enemy; and Ray Hyland, just an ordinary gangster, were interested as the attorneys argued the point.

The defendants are charged with the murder of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, Ill. It was one of the murders incidental to southern Illinois' two-year gang rule in which a score were killed by various methods.

The trial itself has hardly begun. First there were the usual defense motions for dismissing the indictments on technicalities. Now the task of selecting a fair and fool-proof jury is at hand.

State attorney Roy Martin, while questioning veniremen who have qualified for jury service, informed them that the death penalty would be hanging, rather than electrocution as provided under the new law, because Adams was killed before the new method of capital punishment was adopted by the state legislature.

R. E. Smith, Birger's attorney, protested against admission of the record into court, but was overruled. He persisted in his objections, however, as Martin asked the prospective jurors if the method of punishment would make any difference to them in reaching a decision.

Birger, smiling, said Newman, who has been deadly serious, smiled, and Hyland, who has been entirely indifferent to the proceedings, let his face crack for the first time.

The question wasn't decided.

Jefferson County Soon To Have Paved Highway to Augusta

Louisville, Ga., July 11.—(Special.)—Rapid progress is being made on the construction of the paved road through Jefferson county. This road begins at Briar creek at the Richmond county line and passes through Wrens, Louisville and Wadley, and leaves the county at Rock creek at the Emanuel county line. The distance is about 42 miles.

With the exception of two miles at Wrens which the Carolina Construction company will have paved in about three weeks and another link of about five miles between Louisville and Wadley, on which the Bryson Construction company is now working, together with about two miles at the Ogeechee river just near Louisville, this entire road is paved.

A big concrete bridge is being erected over the Ogeechee river and this will be completed in three months. Richmond county has already paved its end of the Louisville and Augusta road and this gives this section a paved road from Augusta with the exception of the link at Wrens.

DRY DIRECTORS HOLD MEETING

Washington, July 11.—(United News.)—Less than one per cent of the liquor consumed in the United States is brought into this country from abroad, its very officials estimated today at a conference of prohibition administrators.

The foreign angle of prohibition enforcement will be taken up tomorrow at the second session of a four-day meeting. N. Anslinger, chief of foreign control, Commander Charles S. Root, of the coast guard, and E. J. Lewis, of the customs service, will lead the discussions.

Responsibility for enforcement was placed squarely on the administrators in the welcoming address of Assistant Secretary Lowman. Receiving reports from the administrators that operation of the law was generally satisfactory, Lowman declared for a businesslike, effective and impartial enforcement.

Administrators from every section of the country except the state of Washington and from the possessions of the United States with the exception of Porto Rico are attending the conference.

Lowman, who will assume office officially August 1 as successor to Assistant Secretary Andrews, today met for the first time most of the men who will officer his dry army. He will discuss with them the organization of their districts on a civil service basis, with representatives of the civil service commission participating in this discussion on Wednesday.

At that time F. O. Howard Jones, assistant to Major Walker Wilbrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, will address the conference.

The Wednesday session will also be marked with an exchange of view points with officers and counsel for national organizations of concern with industrial alcohol.

HUSBAND DENIED PLEA FOR ALIMONY BY CHICAGO JUDGE

Chicago, July 11.—(United News.)—A man not entitled to alimony from his wife, Superior Judge Harry Lewis ruled today when he denied the petition of Walter Brinkman, 27, asking that his wife, Mrs. Rose Brinkman, pay him alimony pending settlement of their divorce case in which he charged her with cruelty.

Judge Lewis ruled that a husband cannot receive alimony but alimony may be paid to a wife if she is unable to support herself and her children.

The divorce case is being heard in the Wilno Red Cross hospital on the verge of death.

The dead are Alice Lacombe, 11; Bella Lacombe, 9; Edna, 7, and Isadore, 5.

The fire started while the four children were asleep in upstairs rooms. The eldest girl, Yvonne, was outside feeding the chickens. She saw an outburst of flame and ran into the house and made a gallant attempt at rescue. She dragged Alice and Bella to a window, but was forced to abandon them and jump. A fifth child, a boy, also jumped from the window, suffering minor injuries.

Four children die when home blazes.

Ottawa, July 11.—(United News.)—Four children were burned to death in their home at Wilno, Ont., today. Another of the family, Yvonne, 18 years of age, made a desperate attempt to save her brother and three sisters. She was burned but saved. She now lies in the Wilno Red Cross hospital on the verge of death.

Alleged Negro Assailant Jailed After Hot Chase

Nashville, Tenn., July 11.—(United News.)—Trilled to his home by bloodhounds, Will Stewart, 52, negro painter, was held in county jail without bond today on a charge of attempting to assault a white woman. He denied all knowledge of the affair.

Screams in the face of a warning "not to holler," frightened the woman's assailant as they struggled just within the front door of her home late Sunday night, she said. Bruises and shock constituted her chief injuries, and, though greatly weakened, she was able to go to jail, where she identified Stewart.

Large Delegation From Atlanta Entered in Chase for Gene Cook's Title—Course a Tough One.

BY WHITNER CARY.

Let a retired race horse hear the blast of "boots and saddles" and his nostrils will quiver, his eyes will sparkle and there will be a decided pricking of his ears; let an old fox hound listen to the echos of a far-away chase and he will tear at his leash to join the pack; let a golf champion sniff the odor of keen competition and he packs his clubs, sends in his entry and catches the rattle for the scene of action. And so it does come to pass that as these lines are written one Watts Gunn, former Georgia state champion, runner-up to Robert Tyre Jones in the national amateur championship of 1925 and recently the golfing whirlwind that swept over the Garder City course in the national intercollegiate, is packing his grip, sorting his clubs and preparing to embark on the 9:40 for Savannah, where he will, as victor, along with some hundred odd ambitious young men, to dethrone Gene Cook from his perch as champion of this sovereign state.

Now far be it from the writer to liken Watts to either a retired equine race king or a declining canine fox chaser. But he is a former champion of the state of Georgia, there is going to be keen competition over the 8,601 yards of that Savannah course and Watts is a great lover of a good golf scrap. So what if the doctor did say a few days ago that it might be well to lay off golf until the American amateur he calls Tom Savannah was too great for the young warrior and he

The entry of Wally has created a tremendous upward trend in Atlanta golfing stock. With Gene Cook, the present champion, Chess Logomarsino, Dave Black, Chick Ridley and a score of other good players, the Atlanta Atlanta, the gate city was already fairly easy as to the prospects of a victory. But now with Wally adding his own considerable talents, the city is going to find the pathway to the championship lined with misery dealing golfers from this city. Of the green cities, only one in this angle would be to see an all-Atlanta final. It might take place, too, in London.

While the pugilistic sound does not place until yesterday, most of the Atlantic players will be in Savannah today. The following is a partial list of the delegation, including Gene Cook, Chess Lagomarsino, Dick Winchel, Joe High Williams and Chick Ridley, are high hopes.

Word filtering in from the course brings the glad tidings that Chess has again turned in on 76 and that he will surely be the player chess gets a whiff of the Atlantic. As per for this lengthy layout, one of the three

"Pinafore" Scores Biggest Hit of Light Opera Season

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Bubbling over with jolly tunes and rollicking ensembles, and with a delightful and piquant atmosphere of humor, "H. M. S. Pinafore" was brought back to Atlanta Monday night by the Atlanta Light Opera company and with the principals and chorus singing as it inspired it proved to be the real hit of the present light opera season.

The old songs of the Gilbert and Sullivan heyday were just as catchy, just as pleasing and just as melodious Monday night as they were a decade ago and the keen satire of the lines of Gilbert was as well received by a modern audience as they were by the original back in the days when DeWolf Hooper cavorted and clowned as the immortal "Dick Dead-Eye."

Revels always have to be exceptionally well done if they score the success desired, and it is safe to say that from an artistic standpoint "Pinafore" is beyond doubt the best thing the local opera company has done this season. The ensembles were unusually effective and when they are sung with the fire and spirit as they were sung Monday night any performance of "Pinafore" is certain to succeed.

Easy and Graceful
Contrary to expectations, the principals were as easy and graceful in the leading roles of this old Victorian favorite as they were in some of the later vehicles. It was expected, by some of them at least, that there would be difficulty in giving the Gilbert and Sullivan classic the proper touch and finish and there was trepidation in the minds of some of the opera lovers, also, but it was needless fear. From Miss Alice Mackenzie, who starred in the leading feminine role, to the tiniest chorus girl the performance was exceptionally well executed.

Miss Mackenzie as "Josephine" did some wonderful singing. The solos and duets brought out the strength and richness of her clear soprano and she moved around easily and gracefully in a role which she perfected to the highest degree. She was given several ovations for her great work and scored one of the biggest individual triumphs of any star thus far this season.

"Pinafore" also brought a pleasing role for Francis Tyler, the new basso, who gave a restrained performance of "Dick Dead-Eye," played with fine repression and with no tendency to ward overplaying a part which could easily have been spoiled.

Louis Templeman did not get his name on the program for some reason or other, but he was very much in evidence in the show. He sang the gallant role of "Captain Corcoran" with his usual polish. Sudworth Frasier was an ideal "Ralph Rackstraw" and sang much better than in any previous opera, due largely to the many numbers given him. Richard Powell played "Sir Joseph Porter" and was effective in the many fine numbers that favorite old character sings, particularly his "Admiral's Song." Miss Madeleine McMahon led the host of "sisters, the cousins and the aunts" and as played the members of the opera company chorus these "relatives" were indeed fair to look upon.

Other Numbers.
The male choruses were sung with strength and harmony and added much to the enjoyment of the show. Charles Gallagher, basso, played "Bill Bobstay" while Miss Flavia Arcaro was excellent as "Little Buttercup." The duets between Miss Arcaro and Mr. Templeman and the beautiful duet by Miss Mackenzie and Mr. Frasier were outstanding hits of the evening. Roland Woodruff appeared in a minor role. Miss Claire McKee, prima donna, did not appear in the cast but enjoyed the performance as a member of the audience. She will have the leading feminine role in "The Count of Luxembourg," the attraction to be offered next week.

Among the old favorites which scored heavily Monday night were "H. M. S. Pinafore," "The Admirals," "The Song of the Larks," "The Merry Maidens and the Tar," "Farwell My Love," "The House of the Rising Sun" and the finale, "Oh, Bliss, Oh, Rapture."

Preceding the production of "Pinafore," an elaborate ballet spectacle was offered the corps de ballet with American and Mexican in the numbers. Others starring in this scene were Lottie Henschel, Mary Fornaro, Hazel Jones and Gene Doughty. Lew Morton and Charles Berton again demonstrated that they form an able team in the production and by giving the people of Atlanta one of the most enjoyable performances of "Pinafore" ever presented here by any company.

Ann Codee, from that city often referred to as "Gay Paree," and her protegee, a young singer with a delightful voice, but who is unnamed on the program, are responsible for the bulk of the virtues of the current Keith vaudeville at the Georgia theatre. An excellent vaudeville house picture, "I-Zat So?" and a news reel depicting our southern life in cowboy pants and a ten-gallon hat are the comic events on the screen.

The bill opens very mildly, insofar as the audience Monday night was concerned, with the hoop-tossing and novelty act of Belmont Boys and Jerry. This is probably great stuff as far as throwing goes, and if you are concerned, the headline act and they are both youngsters who look like they are just out on the stage having a good time, while the other star act, Cantor's "Revels," is composed of half a dozen young men who have all the appearance of high school misses.

But the youngsters provide some mighty attractive entertainment and the girls are mighty easy to look at. The Ryan-Lee team provides 20 minutes of nonsense that is of the specialty clever kind. The act is certainly funny and unique and is a real scream from start to finish.

In Cantor's "Revels" there is a capable dancing comedian, Phil Adams by name, who works with Era Briggs, a pretty young girl with real talent in half a dozen comedy scenes, while the six girls appear from time to time in dances, a little doll dance at the finish being one of the big hits of the show.

Other acts on the bill are pleasing. Hayden, Manning and Hayden in songs, dances and acrobatics are well received. Kennedy and Kramer offer some marvelous tap dancing, particularly Miss Kramer, who is about the best dancer of this type seen here in a doubt enthusiast this act will no doubt draw a big hand from you.

A male quartet labeled "The Four of Us" is in second place on the bill, and they click nicely enough with their program of songs, a dance and instrumental music to accompany. A comedy Chinese song number seems to be the best bit of this act.

Mademoiselle Codee dashes out next with a song in French and a comedian. The song serves to bring to members of the audience who "took French in school the sage reflection that "Ah, French! 'Twas never like this in dear old Hemstead." Outside of that and a few comics by the funny boys, there's absolutely nothing else to this hit, but—don't go off home discouraged, for we hear from Madame Codee later on in the evening. Florence Vernon and company follow by the song "The Girl Who Was Just What," the reviewer is still wondering at this late hour of the night.

SEMINARY ACT REAPS CAPITAL PROGRAM HONORS

With a packed house the Capitol theatre opened its program for the week with a type of entertainment which promises to keep the ticket window busy for the remaining five days presentation.

The vaudeville bill, composed of five numbers, began rather listlessly but redeemed itself by winding up with two entertaining acts. The prime attraction was kept under cover until the last and proved itself to be head-line material for most any vaudeville bill. The act is entitled "Seminaries Scandals," and stars Miss Tompkins Allen. The scene is laid in the bedroom of a member of a young ladies school and the skit is well developed to hold interest, being replete with comic situations and several very attractive girls.

Miss Dolly Kay in her act sings a number of syncopated pieces, some of which are very catchy and well adapted to the type of singing she interpreted, and an unusually vicious style of presenting her numbers. The other members of the bill were Alexander and Kent in stunts on the horizontal bars; Fraley and Putnam in a dance and song skit assisted by the jasses and a western setting and Langford and Myra presenting a rather attractive skit with a few songs thrown in for good measure.

On the screen Belle Bennett starred in a new Universal picture, "The Fourth Commandment." In the development of the plot Miss Bennett is given a chance to show her versatility in capacity for character acting. She plays a young girl who is the stage of a young bride to that of mother with a married son, and she does the entire span well. C. H.

The first feature picture is "The Unknown" with Lon Chaney in the leading role and it is easily one of the best things the versatile Chaney has ever done.

TENSE MELODRAMA FEATURES FRENCH PICTURE AT RIALTO

Of the current stock of films at local theaters that one may indeed be called excellent which surpasses in melodramatic tenor, "Michael Strogoff," the Universal Film de France importation being shown at the Rialto theater this week. It is, perhaps, unfair even to term it melodrama; it is the story of a man's life, a sentimental picture representation, and "Michael Strogoff" does not belong even remotely in this class.

The first and the success of the picture is the story which was written by Jules Verne, and is of true Verne excellence. That the story is faithful need not concern one, so convincingly have the makers reproduced it on the screen, treating both large and small factors in the picture with the utmost care and directorial supervision. It is, widely speaking, the story of a "message to Garcia," with the locale in Russia, the carrier of the message being "Michael Strogoff," courier of the czar, who penetrates the lines of the Tartars to carry a message of warning to the grand duke in Irkutsk.

The second factor in the success of the picture is the extraordinarily fine acting, and since all faces are new to the American public, their performances can be judged with perfect fairness. Ivan Mosjoukine, who plays the title role, has been brought to Hollywood after his portrayal of Michael Strogoff, and so has Natalie de Kovenko, the leading woman.

In Michael Strogoff, the Atlanta public has an opportunity to view the type of film produced by the French. It will prove thoroughly pleasing and quite above the usual run of films seen locally. ELMO HAMBY.

"FRAMED" PROVIDES PLENTY OF ACTION AT METROPOLITAN

Action, picturesqueness, and the atmosphere of the tropics which throws its spell over lovers, are combined in "Framed," feature photoplay at the Metropolitan theater in East Point. The picture is a story of a French army officer, Etienne Hilaire, who is captured by the enemy and is held in a prison in the tropics. He is rescued by a young woman, and the story is a thrilling one.

Tenth Street.
"The Keeper of the Bees," the delightfully new novel by Gene Stratton Porter which appeared recently in McCall's magazine and which is now being adapted for the screen, will be shown at Tenth Street for the last time today. The story, sweet as the honey gathered by the busy bees in the old-fashioned garden of the bee master, a moving tale, told as only Gene Stratton Porter could tell it. The reviewer's name alone is a guarantee of unusual story interest, and the fact that the picture lives up in every detail to the remarkable story, will tell you that there's a great treat in store for you at Tenth Street.

Palace.
"Sorrowful Satan" Today Adolphe Menjou will be featured in "The Sorrows of Satan," one of the oldest stories of the world, in that it is on the old type of rags to riches form. But it's done in a way never before attempted, by the greatest of all producers, D. W. Griffith. He is now producing that has a new angle for every picture and the way in which he supplies new touches for his numerous productions has stamped as one of the greatest when it comes to producing masterpieces. Mr. Griffith has featured Adolphe Menjou as the modern Satan in this story of modern youth and its temptations.

West End.
"Stella Dallas," the tremendous epic of womanhood will be shown for the time today at West End. Belle Bennett, the leading actress, character, portrays the love of Stella so deftly, so deeply that you'll love her as she weeps, rejoice with her as she rejoices, and suffer as she suffers—all because her sins are of the heart, and the heart alone. Stella couldn't guide her own heart, she let it run wild in the story of her love life that will stir the senses.

RICH'S WINDOW DISPLAY HEAD TAKES HONORS

A new honor came to Atlanta Monday, when John C. Mackey, head of the window display department of M. Rich & Brothers company, displayed the gold medal, second prize awarded by the International Association of Display Men. Mr. Mackey's work was adjudged the second best in the United States, Canada and Australia in a competition held in June, and the award was forwarded to him by the International Association of Display Men. The special display which won international recognition for Rich and Mackey was a woman's ready-to-wear window. The contest closed June 11, when competitors gathered at Detroit for the final adjudication. Results were made known Monday.

Contestants from practically all the larger stores of the United States, Canada and Australia entered the competition, and the award which came to Atlanta is regarded as a testimonial to the artistic ability of Mr. Mackey and Monday many congratulatory messages reached Rich's from all parts of the country.

DISMISSAL IS URGED OF SUIT BY HEMPEL

New York, July 11.—(AP)—August Heckescher, a philanthropist, sought through counsel today to have dismissed under the statute of fraud the $1,000,000 suit recently brought against him by Frieda Hempel, operatic soprano.

Declaring that there had been no oral or written contract whereby Hempel was to receive $48,000 a year for the rest of her life, Hempel, who he claimed, C. Frank Heckescher, attorney for Mr. Heckescher, moved before Supreme Court Justice Mahoney that the case be dismissed.

"I do not wish to cast any reflections upon Miss Hempel personally," he said, "but I do say most emphatically that the attempt to saddle on Mr. Heckescher an obligation to pay this lady about a million dollars bears many marks of extortion."

Justice Mahoney reserved decision. Miss Hempel, in her complaint, said she had entered into an agreement with Mr. Heckescher whereby she was to receive the annuity for giving up her opera and concert work and singing for charity.

Montgomery, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—Members of the Ku Klux Klan flogged Jeff Calloway, Attorney General Charles C. McCall charged in a letter written under date of July 9 to James Edale, head of the hooded order.

The attorney general calls upon Mr. Edale to supply the state officers with the names and addresses of those members who participated in the unlawful whipping of the 19-year-old orphan at Oneonta. Mr. McCall replies in his letter that it is understood the order stands for law, order and justice. He claims that he is in possession of information that the youth was beaten by members of the Klaverns at Oneonta and Tarrant City.

In his letter the attorney general says that the state knows that members of the Ku Klux Klan committed the unlawful act. He further says that the state believes that Mr. Edale as head of the Klan in Alabama and the official heads of the local Klaverns at Oneonta and Tarrant City know the men who participated in the whipping, or are in position to ascertain the full facts.

"Can Mr. Edale or the heads of these local Klaverns," asks Mr. McCall, "overlook the demands of justice and still assert that these organizations are truly representative of the principles you publicly pronounce?"

POLICE OF ALABAMA HUNT FOR FLOGGERS.
Birmingham, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—Prompted by a state-wide demand for justice in three reported flogging cases, state county and city officers today were fighting for clues to prevent to grand juries in an effort to indict and punish the trio of masked men charged with the crimes.

Her back cut and bruised from a strapping administered by a masked mob, Bertha A. Slay continued under the care of physicians at her home in Florence tonight.

Eston Murchison, 17-year-old Bessemer boy, who was whipped following an automobile ride with two "strange girls" whom he believed were "used as decoys by the mob," is recovering. Jeff Calloway, of Oneonta, who suffered a severe flogging last week has sufficiently recovered to resume his farm work.

Meanwhile a measure to be submitted to the state legislature at Montgomery by Senator Travis Williams will, if enacted into law, make the wearing of masks and hoods, except for amusement, illegal and the state prison sentences will be provided for violation of the measure, which will be supported for enactment by leaders in both houses of the state legislature, it is said.

Central of Georgia Railway Discusses Significance of New Hospital Service for Its Employees.

The Central of Georgia Railway has always taken a real and active interest in everything affecting the well-being of its employees. In accordance with that policy, the management has just established a hospital system throughout its territory and has opened at Savannah a Company Hospital whose facilities will be available for protecting the lives and health of men and women working for the railroad.

In the construction and equipment of its new hospital, the Central of Georgia has profited by the most recent discoveries in the science of safeguarding health and life. The most approved appliances and the most modern conveniences have been installed. The staff of trained, experienced and thoroughly competent doctors and nurses has been selected with the utmost care, and the management has made available to each employee every facility for prolonging life and guarding against or curing illness. The Central of Georgia employee, of even the most limited means, can through use of the company's new hospital service receive medical attention and treatment equal to that which he could receive at any hospital anywhere in this country.

The inauguration of this hospital service is important, not only to the employees of the Central of Georgia but to the public whom the railroad serves. The transportation service a railroad performs is a public necessity, and the efficiency of the men and women performing it is dependent upon their physical condition. Persons entering the service of this railroad are required to pass a rigid examination, providing a standard of physical efficiency comparable to that demanded by the United States Army. The Central of Georgia expects its hospital system to raise considerably the standard of health among its employees. In railroad work, as in every other line of human endeavor, mistakes are often caused by poor health. The Central of Georgia hopes to reduce such errors and mistakes to the minimum, thus resulting in better service to the public.

The inauguration of this hospital service is only one of the means by which the Central of Georgia expresses its sincere interest in its employees. Other manifestations of that interest are the management's effort to provide continuous employment at fair rates of pay and under agreeable working conditions, its pension plan for veterans retired because of age or physical infirmity, and group life insurance to protect employees' families from want in case of their death.

Railroad patrons have a direct interest in the relations existing between the management and the employees of a railroad. Discontent or dissatisfaction among employees will be reflected in the quality of service the railroad renders the public. The Central of Georgia recognizes its obligation to furnish good service. It deals fairly with its employees, primarily because that is the only right and just policy and also because the men and women of the railroad family respond to such fair treatment by rendering that good service to which the public is entitled.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

OUTCAST.

SYNOPSIS.
A band of crooks stumbles on the fact that the wife of Sir Adrian Shale, who supposedly died six months before in Italy, is alive. It is Miss Winchell, who makes the discovery in a small, out of the way village in Italy. Miss Winchell is a widow, but she is really the wife of Charles Hobson, leader of the crooks.

INSTALLMENT XIV.
IS ANNA ALIVE?
Madam Georgette smiled, but there was a worried look in her eyes.

"What a one you are, Matt! Sir Adrian didn't come here for that, as a matter of fact, and you know very well that we're wiped that miserable seven pounds off the books. It was about Anna. He wants to make her a present, I imagine, and he hasn't got her address."

"Neither have you," said Mr. Given. "No, but I expect we shall hear from her soon. How are the new mannishings shaping up?"

"You'd better come down and see for yourself, Georgie," Mr. Given replied. "The Winchell girl is all right. Seems to have found the idea without any trouble. But little Taylor is taking a lot of teaching. Her appearance is stunning, but she can't walk. She clumps."

"Then she'll never learn... I'll come, Matt. What appointments have we?"

Mr. Given whipped out a gray notebook and, rustling the pages, rattled off a couple of dozen big sounding names. The last on the list was the Honorable Mrs. Walter Holden.

"Mrs. Holden?" queried Madam Georgette. "I don't think we know her?"

"No," said Mr. Given, "we don't. I'll put a little cross opposite her name. If she says for credit, then we'll ask for references."

They went down together to the curtained, softly lighted room on the first floor where a display of autumn models was to be held that morning.

A rather inconspicuous couple—stately, somewhat old-fashioned Madam Georgette and her smartly dapper little husband.

By this time a stream of cars flowed steadily up to the curb, blocked at intervals as one of their number halted and deposited its burden of femininity. The commissionaire was kept busy. When Georgette's cards of invitation announced her show would begin, say at 3:30, to be half an hour late meant to lose exactly half of it, so the guests were prompt.

Some arrived on foot, and amongst these was the lady who had written for a card in the name of the Hon. Mrs. Walter Holden.

In the big show room—attest as they called it—a rustling expectant throng of women congregated, with here and there a forlorn or embarrassed male being in tow; they greeted their friends, stared at the girls parading so effectively in the latest creations of Georgette, criticised, or sat silently, speculatively entranced.

Money breathed here in soft fabrics, the sheen of pearls and mysterious flower scents. Mr. Given, himself, helped to hand around cups of chocolate with whipped cream frothing the top, and little plates of fairy-like cakes and sandwiches. Madam smiled upon all, nodded, exchanged comments and criticisms. There was a homely atmosphere about the show which gave the salon just that fillip of contrast which made it so attractive.

Georgette created wonderful dresses for other women to wear. She did not belittle the importance of those who wore them herself. Your successful painter cannot afford to keep his own masterpieces, and Georgette would not insult her customers by showing in gaudy editions of their own expensive purchases.

There was still that worried line between her brows as she threw what seemed to be careless glances at the young women who, circling languidly, displayed the creations of her work rooms.

It was true, the Taylor girl walked badly, and Matt had used the right word when he said she "clumped." Heavy footed, although divinely featured and formed, it wouldn't do. They'd have to find some work for her outside the showroom. In these hard times, Madam disliked turning off employees, however, recently acquired. She knew from experience what that might mean to a pretty girl.

But that Miss Winchell... the worried line deepened. Miss Winchell was a find. The girl was perfect and at the same time Madam, who had only noticed her casual, once or twice before, experienced a closely familiar feeling as she studied Doris on this occasion. It was a soft, charming face, with something of her own contained expression. Madam stole a sideways glance at her husband, so busy handing cakes and making himself agreeable... She was too pale, that Miss Winchell.

Madam spoke to the dresser about it.

"For the Watteau blue frock, a little touch of Blush Rose on the Winchell girl's cheeks," she said. "Not too much—just a touch, a caress, as it were."

Slipping back into the showroom, a timid hand brushed Georgette's arm, and there was a little lady who proved to be the possible new customer, the Honorable Mrs. Walter Holden, who introduced herself prettily as a great friend of the late Lady Shale.

"I believe," said the Honorable Mrs. Walter Holden, "that I once met your sister. A most estimable woman, a Miss Ferguson. She was Lady Shale's maid, wasn't she? Not an ordinary maid, of course."

"O, quite an ordinary maid," Georgette replied. And although she smiled her most agreeable and friendly smile, the line between her brows persisted. She was thinking again of Anna and of Sir Adrian Shale—what he might know about this silence of Anna's, yet hadn't told her. He knew something—yet what could it be? Then again her glance fell upon the girl who was parading in the Watteau blue frock.

A triumph, that creation! But Louis, the experienced old dresser, hadn't yet got Miss Winchell's complexion quite right. Under the dash of Blush Rose the girl was paler than ever. One didn't know how they lived, these poor beautiful young things. Perhaps the Winchell girl didn't get enough to eat at home, and it was so hard—so desperately hard—when they were pretty and temptation ever waited on the doorstep.

It seemed to Georgette that the Winchell girl's eyes held a look of fright, too. What for? Perhaps the child was really ill and fighting against collapse.

"She's wonderfully beautiful, isn't she?" said the Honorable Mrs. Walter Holden, raising a gold rimmed lorgnette.

Georgette had often heard her gowns criticized, but never had she heard one of her mannishings admired so extravagantly. She was conscious of a pleased little thrill. She liked this Mrs. Holden. Here was a woman—pretty herself—who could be generous about a young creature of her own sex. It was somewhat unique in Georgette's experience.

"I adore that gown," Mrs. Holden went on. "I think I'll have it. Yes, as I was saying, I spent last winter on the Riviera. I was in Allassio shortly after dear Lady Shale's death. It was a pilgrimage, as one might say. I wanted to lay some flowers on her grave. Such a lovely woman, Lady Shale. But, of course, you know her. Did you see my sister—when you went to Allassio?" Georgette asked, her voice a little sharp.

"No—O, no!" Mrs. Holden's head dropped slightly. "One would have thought Miss Ferguson would have remained until after the funeral, but it seems she didn't. Sir Adrian, himself, drove her to San Remo and saw her off to England. I hope your sister is quite well, Madam."

"As far as I know she is—quite well," said Georgette.

She moved away, with a halting, somewhat fumbling step.

Strange that Anna should come up so importantly all of a sudden. Madam had been almost like a mother to Georgette—or, to give her her girlhood's name, Georgina Ferguson—but the business of earning a livelihood had drifted them apart. It occurred to Georgette that Anna must have a neat little pile of savings and securities laid away somewhere. If Anna were alive—already her sister was querying it—she would have been in communication with her bank at some time during these last nine months, either to withdraw money or, what was far more probable, to deposit a goodly proportion of her wages.

New York, July 11.—(AP)—The bullish influence of Saturday's official cotton acreage figures was reflected in a continuation of the buying movement and new high prices for new crop positions in the cotton market today. October sold up to 17.17, while January advanced to 18.04. The close was within a point of the previous day, with the market very steady, at net advances of 31 to 41 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 7 to 8 points on over-Sunday buying orders brought in by the strength of Saturday. Prices soon showed net gains of 15 to 18 points. There was some selling on reports of favorable weather conditions, and after the execution of spot orders on the early advance to 17.55 for October, prices eased off slightly under realizing.

Except for profit-taking, offerings were comparatively light and were absorbed by continued covering, while set-backs of 8 to 10 points from the best seemed to bring in fresh buying for either trade or speculative account.

Up Again.

This checked the reaction and the market turned upward again during early afternoon, reaching the highest levels of the day on a renewal of covering and commission house buying. Reports that trade interests were taking advantage of the early set-backs to fix prices on call cotton seemed to increase the confidence of buyers, while there was also some bullish comment on reports of show-ers or rains in the eastern belt and of cotton blight in some sections in the southwest.

All months made new high ground for the movement, July selling up to 17.43, and December to 17.99 in late trading. The afternoon buying movement was attributed partly to West-ern and was thought to be encour-aged by a favorable view of the gen-eral trade economic situation. A sharp advance in the Egyptian cot-ton market, respectively, Coptic Press, was a contributing factor on the ad-vance here, and buying by houses with foreign trade connections was reported during the day.

Cotton Goods.

Cotton goods trade statistics for June, indicating that unfilled orders at the end of June were 163.4 per cent larger than a year ago, were among the bullish influences.

Exports today 20,439, making 10,987,415 so far this season. Port re-ports 5,581.

United States port stocks, 1,110,700.

BULLISH ESTIMATE ADVANCES COTTON.

New Orleans, July 11.—(AP)—Prices moved upward on the cotton market today under the influence of favorable cotton cloth and textile estimates and trade buying. The close was 39 to 41 points above that of Saturday and the rally carried March and May near the 38 cent level.

First trades showed no change for October but gains of 3 to 4 points on the later months. The opening prices were the lows with October at 17.28, December at 17.43 and January 17.50.

Trade buying and covering stimu-lated the advance up to October reach-ing 17.55, December 17.66 and January 17.73, 17 to 18 points above the previous day. A reaction brought a loss of 8 points near mid-session after which the market again moved up to 17.85 for October and 17.99 for January.

Prices eased off to 17.84 and 17.94, 39 to 41 points above the previous close. Prices eased off to a few points at the end of realizing.

Exports the day were 20,439 bales.

High Lights in the Cotton Market

BY THEO. H. PRICE.
Editor, Commerce and Finance, New York.

While the government report on cotton acreage issued last Saturday was only an estimate, it would be futile to deny that it has profoundly affected what is called the psychology of the market by increasing its susceptibility to future reports of damage. As compared with last year, the figures published indicate a decrease of 12.4 per cent in the acreage planted. The average abandonment for the last 22 years has been 2.0 per cent and the average yield for the same period has been 17.11 pounds per acre picked. On the basis of these figures and the government estimate of the acreage for next season, the mathe-matically indicated crop would be 14,835,000 bales of 478 pounds net or 500 pounds gross. As this calculation is based upon a crop of the past it is plain that any impairment in the crop outlook hereafter may inspire crop estimates that will lead to a further advance in prices. In the circumstances it is not to be expected that anyone will have the temerity to go short until the new crop is for sale in quantity, and from now until the hyper-sensitive dis-tribution of the trade to unfavorable developments may lead to some very erratic and startling fluctuations.

This is about all that can be said. Meantime it is to be observed that the monthly report of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York shows an increase of 23.7 per cent over last year in the production of cotton goods during the month of June, whereas the sales during the same month showed an increase of only 4 per cent.

These figures cover upward of 200 constructions or classifications of cot-ton cloth and represent a large por-tion of the total production of these cloths. The decrease in sales is seasonal, but it is a reflection, nevertheless, of the effect which high-er prices have upon consumption and should not be ignored by those who take a long-distance view of the probabilities.

Then there is the noticeable falling off in the export demand for Amer-ican cotton that has recently developed. The purchases of American cotton to arrive in India from the first of Sep-tember, 1926, to the 21st of August, 1927, are estimated at about 300,000 bales. These shipments were for the relatively low price at which American cotton could be bought dur-ing the season now ending, and as it is not likely that we shall ship any such quantity to East India during the season of 1927-28 allowance for the resulting decrease in the dis-tribution of next year's crop should be made.

This probability adds to the com-plexity of the cotton market and until the evidence of American under produc-tion is more definite extreme cir-cum-spection in anticipating a further ad-vance in prices would seem to be desirable.

CURB'S TONE IS IRREGULAR

New York, July 11.—(By The Associated Press.)—While a few oils and several industrial issues displayed strength in today's curb market, the general tone was irregular, with signs of profit taking in various sections of the list.

Much of the day's buying was centered in stocks which have recently proven popular, including American Road Machinery common and preferred, both of which touched new tops with gains of more than 3 and 11 points, respectively. Cuyuna Street was bought heavily, selling up to 53.1-2, a new peak price.

Motor shares displayed strength. Ford of Canada jumped 35 points to 535, the highest of the year, while Reo gained about a point. Tire issues were irregular, a gain of 13-4 in Goodyear offsetting a similar loss by Firestone.

Humble Oil and Prairie Fire Lin. marked the oils, rising about a point each on the hope that renewed effi-cacy by large producers may result in cur-tailing the flood production in the Seminole field. Sugar shares were scoring advances of 2 points or so strong. Central Aguirre and Farac-Sawley Stores jumped 9 points on a few odd-lot sales.

Profit taking clipped a point off Cel-anese preferred and United States Gypsum. United Biscuit and a few others sold down 1 to 2 points. An-nouncement issues were soft, presumably in reflection of the federal trade com-mission decision. Warner Bros. Pictures lost a point while the company's 6-12 per cent bonds held nearly 6 points to a new 1927 low.

Reliable Optical Service

After your oculist has scientifically examined your eyes for glasses, you should be as careful in the selection of your glasses as you were in the selection of your oculist. There are many patients sadly disappointed in their glasses, and lay all the blame on their oculist, when in many cases the fault is in the material and workmanship furnished by the optician. It requires just as much knowledge and skill to make a pair of glasses correctly as it does to make a correct examination of the eye.

Ask your oculist about us and our reliability, if you do not already know.

CELEBRATES FIFTH
BIRTHDAY AT MEET

A review of the work accomplished during the past five years, the appointment of a nominating committee and a discussion of the proposed widening of Edgewood avenue, from Boulevard to Elizabeth street, featured the July meeting commemorating the fifth anniversary of the Ninth Ward Civic association Monday night at the Highland avenue school.

C. M. Zattau, Marvin Roane and Mrs. E. A. Pierce were named on a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year. The committee will report back and an annual election of officers will be held early in August at the regular monthly meeting.

It was reported that the Forrest avenue extension underpass has just been completed, but that it will not be opened for traffic for several days. The completion of this project was pointed out as one of the real accomplishments of the club during its five years of existence.

Members of a committee of the association to cooperate with the Atlanta inter-league council, composed of members from every civic club in the city, reported that that organization was one of the best of its kind and was prepared to do a great work in the growth and progress of the city.

FIVE HURT IN MONDAY AUTOMOBILE MISHAPS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Reid, and their little boy, of 925 Euclid avenue, were taken to Georgia Baptist hospital early Monday night with injuries received in a head-on collision between an automobile driven by Mr. Reid and one driven by Grady Bennett, of 554 Chestnut street. The accident happened at Spruce street and Edgewood avenue, according to police reports.

Patrolmen E. W. Ginn and S. R. McGarrity, who investigated, reported that Reid was driving east on Edgewood avenue and Bennett was driving in the opposite direction. Mr. Bennett's car skidded from the north to the south side of the street, they said, causing the two cars to collide.

James Duke, 35, of Hapeville was treated at Grady hospital Monday afternoon for cuts on his leg, said to have been received when he was struck by a motor truck. Hospital attendants were not given details of the mishap and police have no report of it.

J. J. Hines, 30, of 720 Piedmont avenue, was struck down by an automobile driven by H. F. Blair on Piedmont avenue, according to police reports.

Mr. Hines attempted to run across Piedmont avenue near his home in an effort to catch an inbound street car and was struck down in the middle of the block, it was reported.

Mr. Blair stopped his car, took the injured man to Davis-Fischer hospital and then reported the accident to Captain G. C. Cain. Mr. Blair's car drew was not learned, but his car bore a Pennsylvania license tag, police reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Reid, and their little boy, of 925 Euclid avenue, were taken to Georgia Baptist hospital early Monday night with injuries received in a head-on collision between an automobile driven by Mr. Reid and one driven by Grady Bennett, of 554 Chestnut street. The accident happened at Spruce street and Edgewood avenue, according to police reports.

Patrolmen E. W. Ginn and S. R. McGarrity, who investigated, reported that Reid was driving east on Edgewood avenue and Bennett was driving in the opposite direction. Mr. Bennett's car skidded from the north to the south side of the street, they said, causing the two cars to collide.

James Duke, 35, of Hapeville was treated at Grady hospital Monday afternoon for cuts on his leg, said to have been received when he was struck by a motor truck. Hospital attendants were not given details of the mishap and police have no report of it.

J. J. Hines, 30, of 720 Piedmont avenue, was struck down by an automobile driven by H. F. Blair on Piedmont avenue, according to police reports.

Mr. Hines attempted to run across Piedmont avenue near his home in an effort to catch an inbound street car and was struck down in the middle of the block, it was reported.

Mr. Blair stopped his car, took the injured man to Davis-Fischer hospital and then reported the accident to Captain G. C. Cain. Mr. Blair's car drew was not learned, but his car bore a Pennsylvania license tag, police reported.

CELEBRATES FIFTH
BIRTHDAY AT MEET

A review of the work accomplished during the past five years, the appointment of a nominating committee and a discussion of the proposed widening of Edgewood avenue, from Boulevard to Elizabeth street, featured the July meeting commemorating the fifth anniversary of the Ninth Ward Civic association Monday night at the Highland avenue school.

C. M. Zattau, Marvin Roane and Mrs. E. A. Pierce were named on a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year. The committee will report back and an annual election of officers will be held early in August at the regular monthly meeting.

It was reported that the Forrest avenue extension underpass has just been completed, but that it will not be opened for traffic for several days. The completion of this project was pointed out as one of the real accomplishments of the club during its five years of existence.

Members of a committee of the association to cooperate with the Atlanta inter-league council, composed of members from every civic club in the city, reported that that organization was one of the best of its kind and was prepared to do a great work in the growth and progress of the city.
